DISESTABLISHMENT OF WALES CAUSED WAR

Peculiar Belief of Clergyman as to England's Part in Conflict.

London, July 10.—Some church of England clergymen are convinced that this war, or at least England's participation in it, has been caused by the passage of the Welsh disestablishment bill. And they attribute the terrible losses she has suffered in the war to the same "iniquitous" measure. None of them are recognized as leading lights of theology, but they can claim credit to possessing the courage of their convictions, for they have not hesitated to place their opinions on record in sundry sermons and parish magazines.

Conspicuous among them is the Rev. William James who styles himself "Priest in God" but in the clerical directory is more practically termed "curate in charge." His church is at Witley in Cheshire. Not content with proclaiming his views from the pulpit as to the dire and divine punishment England has brought upon herself by disestablishing the Welsh church, he has published them in flamboyant poster form which he sells for a penny. Here are some extracts from it:

"England has put on her statute book the Welsh church bill which proposes sacrilege. Sacrilege means ruin! God has uttered three warnings. On the bill's introduction—loss of the Titanic (1500 lives); terrible railway disasters—awful pit accidents—alarming strikes. On its second and third readings, loss of the Empress of Ireland (1,000 lives)—threatening of civil war. On its passing—loss of three cruisers—(1,200 lives)."

Mr. James goes further than this. He assumes the role of a prophet. England, he declares, is doomed if she sticks to the Welsh disestablishment bill. On the other hand, she will win the war and reap honor and glory from it if she takes the bill off the statute book. He writes:

"England is doomed unless she repents and repeals the Welsh church bill. Choose ye—the bill with disaster, misery, or—the accursed thing put away, and God's blessing and protection restored. Victory—honor—Glory!"

Most clergymen, both church of England and nonconformist, are convinced that England's cause is just and that God is on her side. And some of them actually believe that angels are helping the British troops to triumph over the Germans. A church of England clergyman at Southampton writes in his parish magazine:

"The daughter of a well-known canon of the church knows two officers who themselves saw the angels who saved our left wing in the retreat from Mons."

Then he goes on to describe how the German cavalry in overwhelming numbers were swooping down on the British, when—

"They saw between them and the enemy a whole troop of angels. The German horses turned round terrified and regularly stamped. The men tugged at their bridles, but the poor beasts tore away in every direction from our men."

The Rev. Dr. Horton, a distinguished Congregationalist divine, lends the weight of his authority to this same story of angelic intervention. In a sermon delivered at Manchester he said:

There is a story repeated by so many eye-witnesses that if anything can be established by contemporary evidence it is established of the retreat from Mons. A section of the line was in imminent peril and seemed as if it must inevitably be borne down and cut off.

"Our men saw a company of angels interposed between them and the German cavalry and the horses of the Germans stamped. Evidently the animals beheld what our men beheld. The German soldiers endeavored to bring the horses back to the line, but they fled. It was the salvation of our men."

In the same sermon Dr. Horton told another story of how a transport ship in the Dardanelles was saved, as he believes, by prayer. He said:

"I had news from the Dardanelles last week, by prayer. A sailor on one of our transport ships told me in the simplest language how airplanes of the enemy came over the vessel dropping bombs. The captain, who is a man of God, gave the order to the men to pray. They knelt on the deck and prayer and the Lord delivered them. The eighteen bombs which seemed to be falling from overhead fell harmlessly into the sea."

DEATHS

Little Child Dead.
Ruby Kay, the little thirteen months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kay of 415 Fair street, died at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. The funeral will be held today at Corliss No. 1.

Burns the Warehouse.
Mr. W. P. G. Harding, chairman of the regional reserve board, is very much afraid that there is going to be another congestion of cotton stocks this fall, and is endeavoring to perfect plans that will obviate recurrence of last year's financial troubles. From what has developed so far, it is evident that if South Carolina provides herself with a sufficient quantity of state warehouse space, she will get the best of what is going—Yorkville Enquirer.

IVA CHAUTAUQUA IS DRAWING ATTENTION

FOR THREE DAYS TOWN WILL BE FULL OF VISITORS AND LIFE

BEGINS ON JULY 23

Attractions Will be of Best and Many Expected to Attend—Canning Demonstration.

The Chautauqua which is to be held at Iva on July 23, 24, and 25, is already attracting much attention and during those days that little town will be one of festivity and enjoyment.

The first attraction of the chautauqua proper will be given on Friday afternoon, July 23. Already a large number of tickets have been sold and it is thought that there will be a full attendance.

Beginning at 9 o'clock a. m. on the same day a demonstration of the fireless cooker will be given by the demonstrator of the tomato club of Anderson county. Immediately after this canning demonstration will be given, tomatoes and beans being used. This will be one of the most interesting features.

During the day the ladies' societies of the town will serve refreshments and dinner.

Mr. Harrison Very Ill.
The condition of Mr. James Harrison, who is very ill at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. C. Cunningham, was reported as being not improved late last night. Mr. Harrison became ill very suddenly a few mornings ago and since that time his condition has been considered serious.

Helping Henry Ford Cure Drug Fiends.

Charles B. Towns.

Henry Ford, the Michigan automobile manufacturer, has obtained the cooperation of Charles B. Towns in his efforts to establish in Detroit a hospital where alcoholic and drug fiends may be cured. Already five victims have been sent from the automobile factory to Mr. Towns' establishment in New York in charge of physicians and observers, who will use the knowledge they gather for the hospital in Detroit. Mr. Towns has been very successful in curing victims of all drugs.

Mr. Ford believes that no man is so far down in the human scale that he cannot be pulled back to usefulness. Accordingly, the quintette of young men—three employed in his factory and two with jobs in sight there—have been sent to New York to be cured of their habits so that they can earn more money and treat their families better.

But the big idea which Mr. Ford seeks to work out in the establishment in Detroit of a ward in his new hospital for the cure of the drink, drug and tobacco habits. The five men who are patients in the New York hospital are affording Mr. Ford's surgeons and sociologists an opportunity of working out plans for the upbuilding of an institution such as Mr. Ford has in mind. Here it may be said that Mr. Ford is receiving daily many appeals from wives and mothers to take their husbands and sons and make something out of them.

Out of the expected cure of the five men and the methods of treatment applied to each patient has planned to grow a ward in Mr. Ford's Detroit hospital to combat the use of liquor and drugs among the 19,000 employees in the Ford plant and among others that Mr. Ford desires to reach out and save.

The five cases were especially selected by Mr. Ford's representatives to test certain phases of treatment. There is one morphine user who begs to be cured of the habit. There is another who is willing to be cured but who says that unless he is relieved of the craving he would go back to the drug after being kept away from it for ten years. There is one young fellow who occasionally "goes out on a bit" and who has a splendid prospect ahead of him if he stays away from liquor. There is one alcoholic who has been drinking for years and a similar knicker who has a large family dependent upon him.
